MASSIC MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD

Solemn and impressive, yet with such a beauty of solemnity as to touch the hearts of all present were the ceremonies that attended the observance of the feast of the Pascal Lamb by the Norwich chapter of Rose Croix, A. S. R. H., held at Davis theatre on Thursday evening.

The members of the chapter were seated on the stage at a table in the form of the cross. At the left of the stage at another table were laid nine places for the deceased members who passed on during the year. The drapery of the tables were in scarlet, making a picturesque setting for the occasion against a background of beautiful palms.

The services were opened by prayer of P. M. W. M. James C. Macpherson, 32d, and a responsive verse by Rev. J. M. W. M. E. Allen, 32d.

Prayer, by the Tempo Quartet of Hartford. Following a selection by the quartet, Archibald Mitchell, Jr., 32d, Master of the service, his subject being "This Holy Day."

This service, said Mr. Mitchell, is a service to the living and to the dead, a human soul and with all religions. We all serve one God. The springtime has always been the time of thanksgiving, and it was at this time of the year that the Feast of the Passover was celebrated and it was at the feast that our Savior broke bread before going to His crucifixion. It is in observance of this feast that we have this service.

We are of one brotherhood. It is the law of brotherly love that inspires us. Masons are the sons of one master to whom we are all brothers.

The Mystic Roll, the calling of the names of the departed, was perhaps the most impressive part of the service. It came in the form of a list conducted by J. Frank Corey, 32d, and George A. Keppeler, 32d.

Each was called Mr. Keppeler would go to his place, pick up the place card and read the name of the deceased. As the bell struck one solemn stroke and the lights were dimmed. They were all in spirit. We greet you, said Mr. Keppeler.

Charles M. Gerdenier, 32d, gave the memorial address in which he said: "The most profound problem of life is the question of death. The river is deep and the banks are dark but those who have knowledge go across with no fear. The road of death is a path, and we have faith have no fear. Everything mortal must return to earth from whence it came, and all things of the spirit go to Him who gave it all. He is the great mandate of the angel of death who knocks and we must answer. Our friend is not dead, we call him back, and he answers, yet he has no more, yet we seem to feel his presence, we can not see him, yet we know he is with us. We should not sorrow and we should not regret, but we should erect a monument of love to him."

The Mystic Banquet or communion, was participated in by all those present. D. Lathrop, June 16, 1918.

Rev. J. Romyen Danforth, New London, gave the benediction. The service was closed by a responsive verse by Rev. J. Romyen Danforth, New London, June 16, 1918.

Tempo Quartet, Hartford, Conn.—H. L. Maercklein, first tenor; W. J. Carroll, second tenor; Thomas E. Couch, baritone; Elbert L. Couch, bass. Frederick W. Lester, accompanist.

These men, having set a crown of imperishable glory on the memories of their departed loved ones, they folded in the cloud of death. Yet having died, they are not dead, for their excellence raises them forever out of the House of Hades.

DETOUR WELL MARKED.
SAYS STREET COMMISSIONER

Street Commissioner James P. Fox said on Thursday that he was surprised to find that the detour of the Chamber of Commerce meeting Wednesday night of the way the detour is marked for automobiles on account of the work in West Thames street.

"For cars going toward New London, he said, the detour is to go out West Main street and past the fair grounds main entrance so as to reach the New London road at the corner of the street."

Cars that want to reach Thamesville and not go all the way to Trading Cove can turn into Dunham street and wait for a car to take them to the square corner that no one can fail to see.

Cars coming up from New London must turn right at the corner of West Thames street and Dunham street, directing them to use Dunham street to get to the city. He has not yet seen a sign at the Trading Cove corner to guide cars bound this way, because he cannot afford to send a man down there every night to make sure the sign is in place, as would have to be done. Later on, however, when the West Thames street work gets south of the Dunham street corner, he will have to have such a sign for northbound cars at the Trading Cove corner, but it is not called for yet.

Street Commissioner Fox has eliminated Sunday closing of the corner plan, as the present condition of that street is poor for automobiles.

DAVIS THEATRE

One of the world's greatest acrobats, casting a bill at the Davis theatre for the last half of this week and this act alone packed the theatre on Thursday afternoon.

The evening Campbell are world famed and their only possible rivals on the American vaudeville stage today are the Four Lukens. The feats performed by this team of dare-devils are almost superhuman and beyond description.

Other acts on the bill are Paul Brady, an original dancing and singing comedian who has one of the best single acts that has played on the local stage this season. Eldon and Clifton, a man and a maid, have a neat singing and talking skit that is better than most.

The motion pictures on the bill are excellent, the feature being Goodbye Bill, a five part Paramount picture starring Shirley Mason in a satire on the mad Max of Berlin. Billy Abuckle in Love is a scream from start to finish and proves the contrary to the old saying Nobody Loves a Fat Man.

Death of Mrs. Henry Bromley.
Mrs. Viola Annetta Derby Bromley, widow of the Rev. Henry Bromley, who was one of the pastors of the Greenwood Baptist church, in Brooklyn, N. Y., died Monday in her seventy-fourth year. She lived at 494 Tenth St., Brooklyn, and was a member of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Seventeenth century. The daughters of the American Revolution and the Founders of Norwich, Conn. Before marriage Mrs. Bromley was a teacher in the Brooklyn public schools. She is survived by a sister, niece and four nephews.

Entertained Soldier at Plainfield.
Harold Lewis of Plainfield recently entertained Corporal Ernest Blakley of Northboro, Mass., who has lately returned from overseas with the 101st infantry of the 25th division. He has been gassed and slightly wounded by shrapnel. His former Plainfield friends were very glad to welcome him back and happy to find him enjoying such perfect health after what he had been through.

A woman's hair may be her crown. In glory and in shame, but she will be surprised by her 1919 Easter bonnet.

YOUNG TURKS RESPONSIBLE FOR DISORDERS IN EGYPT

Boston, April 17.—Charges that the Young Turks are responsible for the disorders in Egypt as well as for organized murder of Christians in Turkey, are contained in a statement made tonight by Miran Sevasly, the chairman of the Armenian National Union, commenting upon an Associated Press dispatch from London telling of reports received there from Rear Admiral Webb, R. N., at Constantinople, of the serious situation in Turkey, Mr. Sevasly said:

"The report published from London on the gravity of the Turkish situation is confirmed by reliable reports that have reached the office of the Armenian National Union. Unless America and the allied powers take drastic immediate steps the world may witness a fresh catastrophe, which will engulf all that remains of the historic Armenian and Greek populations of Armenia and Asia Minor."

"The murders and partial massacres perpetrated in Egypt and which General Allenby is now repressing are directly instigated by the Young Turks, whose power for evil has in no way been curtailed and form a part of a general Young Turkey movement against civilization."

WARSHIP TO TRANSPORT BODY OF EDITH CAVELL

London, April 17.—(British Wireless Service.) The body of Edith Cavell, the English nurse who was executed by the Germans in 1915 at Brussels, will be brought to England from Belgium on May 15 and taken to Westminster Abbey, where a service will be held. The body will be brought to Dover on a warship and will be transported on a gun carriage with military escort to Victoria Station and thence to Westminster Abbey. Interment will be at Norwich, the home town of the Cavells.

METHODISTS PLANNING TEMPERANCE SALOONS

Temperance saloons for Boston are the plan of the Methodist Centenary, announced by Dr. J. L. Bartholomew, executive secretary of Boston Area, today. A large part of the $140,000.00 to be raised next month for home and foreign reconstruction work is to be expended in establishing poor men's clubs, that will furnish all the good elements of the saloon minus the booze. In some cases regular saloons are to be purchased, in which the only changes will be that the temperance saloon keeper will hand soft drinks and coffee over the bar.

Community houses are also to be established in connection with the Methodist churches of Great Boston and in the principal New England cities. For some years Morgan Memorial has experimented in the better ways of running such a community club, and has finally evolved the Seaview Settlement. This up-to-date settlement is one of the best equipped "poor-man's clubs" in the world. The basement is used for a men's club room, an entertainment hall with a stage at one end. There is also a library, reading room, game room and writing room. On the street floor a lunch room, barber shop and a room for cleaning and pressing clothes are maintained. Dormitories occupy the remaining three floors.

Temple street church, just back of the State House, has another of these community clubs, where an especially cordial welcome is given to returning soldiers and sailors. Clubs of this type and many other kinds that will be appropriate to the community in which they are to be established are a part of the Centenary plans.

Detroit (Michigan) which is the first big city in the country to go dry, is already putting into operation some of these Centenary temperance saloons. Attractive places are being opened where men may have an opportunity of meeting and deciding the great questions of the day in just the way they need to in front of the bar. Opportunity for good wholesome recreation is given in well-equipped gymnasiums.

Men who used to be patrons of the saloons are being consulted. Most of them assert that, men frequented saloons because of the "good fellowship" that could be obtained in them. It is this same atmosphere of "good fellowship" minus the head-ache-dealing, home-wrecking booze that will be sought to be developed in the proposed community houses.
